May 2003, saying her eight-year-old son had suddenly developed a behavioural problem. He had lost his appetite, wasn't eating properly and had completely lost interest in his studies. He had also begun to "behave badly", which he expressed as extreme stubbornness and temper tantrums.

It was such a shame. Mrs Anchan said Aditya was a very diligent student till a few months ago but after his brother was born, Aditya had to share his mother's attention.

Mrs Anchan was a working mother, and already on a short fuse, she would usually find Aditya watching television when she returned home from work. She would fly off the handle, switch off the TV, scold her son for neglecting his homework and sometimes beat him too.

Unable to understand his mother's sudden rage, Aditya responded by crying bitterly. But frightened and confused, the boy soon became withdrawn. This extended to his behaviour in school, where he stopped paying attention in class. He resented the frequent punishment meted out to him but turned indifferent to that as well. Aditya felt no remorse.

Unable to bear the pain of her son's withdrawal, Mrs Anchan approached MindHeal Homeopathy. With tears in her eyes, she recounted an incident when she had tripped and fell down the stairs and Aditya merely looked on, with no reaction.

Assessment

MindHeal Homeopathy was able to bring about a transformation in Aditya in just three months. Fortunately, the child's basic nature was loving and friendly and his behavioural problem was recent. Aditya was suffering from what psychologists call 'dethronement anxiety'.

with his baby brother and therefore began acting out. Thus the temper tantrums. But being a sensitive boy, the consequences of his behaviour - frequent scolding and beatings - only added to his rage.

The only way the eight-year-old's tender psyche could cope with the storm raging inside was to put up a wall and deny his feelings. That way, it didn't matter what his mother and teachers said or did. Aditya simply didn't care.

Treatment

After MindHeal Homeopathy's treatment, the sensitivity began to flow back into the child. So when Mrs Anchan scolded him, he would cry once again - a good sign! And when she held him close, he immediately returned the hug.

Aditya's academic performance also improved dramatically, and he even scored 89 per cent on his tests. His appetite improved considerably and he began playing with

After

Here's another interesting observation. When Aditya came to MindHeal Homeopathy, his hair was stiff and it seemed to stand on end. Post-treatment, his hair sat like a soft crop on his head. As our treatment softened his nature and his sensitivity returned, amazingly his hair followed suit!

The most touching proof that our treatment had worked is that Aditya began playing with his baby brother, who was once the object of his resentment.
